Premier Alliance Update – Resumption of Red Sea and Suez Canal Routing for MD1 and MS2 Services

Dear Valued Customers,

To enhance supply chain efficiency and offer more competitive transit times between Asia and the Mediterranean, Yang Ming Marine Transport Corp. (Yang Ming) announces that our MD1 and MS2 services, operating under the Premier Alliance network, will return to their traditional routing via the Red Sea and the Suez Canal. This strategic decision has been made following a comprehensive assessment of the regional security environment and operational conditions, with the objective of enhancing service reliability and transit time competitiveness.
This routing adjustment will take effect starting from the following voyages:

Service	Vessel	Voyage	Intended ETA Port	Intended ETA date

Safety and Monitoring:

Yang Ming will continue to closely monitor developments in the Red Sea and conduct ongoing assessments of the regional security environment. Any future routing updates will be evaluated on a service-by-service basis to ensure a controlled and gradual transition when conditions permit.

The safety and security of our crew, vessels, and customers' cargo remain our highest priority.

Customers will benefit from shorter transit times and improved schedule reliability following the reinstatement of traditional Suez Canal routing.

Yours sincerely,
Yang Ming Marine Transport Corp.
